

The U.S. Navy and Coast Guard are enforcing a security zone in the vicinity of Kings Bay, Georgia. No vessels are allowed within this zone.

Naval Vessel Protection Zones:

The U.S. Navy and Coast Guard are enforcing security zones around all U.S. Navy vessels. No vessel may come within 100 yards of a U.S. naval vessel, whether the naval vessel is underway or moored. Additionally, vessel must slow to minimum speed necessary to maintain steerage when coming within 500 yards of any U.S. naval vessel. These zones apply to the ports of Jacksonville, Canaveral, and Fernandina.

Local 100 yard security zones:

The U.S. Coast Guard is also enforcing security zones around all tank vessels, cruise ships, and military pre-positioned ships (MPS) in the ports of Jacksonville and Canaveral. No vessel may come within 100 yards of these ships, whether these ships are underway or moored.